

And so, we arrived at the last newsletter of TRIO!

The TRIO project was dedicated to creating a comprehensive upskilling pathway to enhance health, digital, and data literacy for adults of all ages. Our mission was to advance adult education by fostering digital readiness, resilience, and capacity.

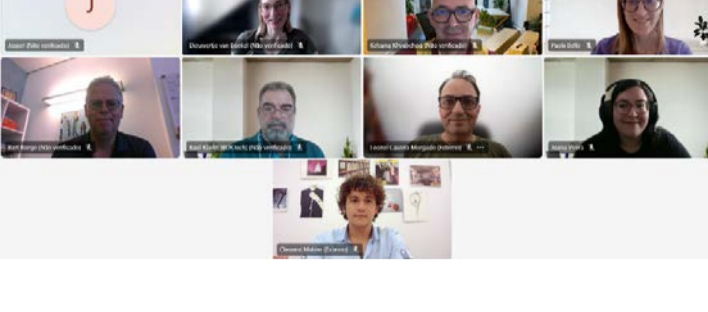

Over the past two years, TRIO implemented a modular strategy that included a manual, a curriculum, and a complete toolkit for adult educators. This was supported by a dynamic digital learning platform designed to adapt to the evolving needs of users, technology, and contexts. Additionally, TRIO produced a Green Paper presented to policymakers and relevant European initiatives.

As we wrap up the final edition of our newsletter, we reflect on the great journey we go on board on. TRIO partners extend our thanks to the end-users who contributed to the final outcomes. Without your input, it would not have been possible to achieve our goals.

In the spotlight

TRIO partners get together for the last time, to the fifth consortium meeting, held by SHINE 2Europe

Partners discussed past accomplishments, the final outputs, and the sustainability plan. Essentially, we confirmed that everything is ready to finalize the project successfully.

Workshops concluded successfully

All partners conducted final workshops to test the platform and gather feedback from end-users for further improvements. The consensus was clear: participants found that the platform helped them learn healthier habits and provided valuable ideas for enhancing their lifestyles.

Our multiplier events occurred and were very well-received

All partners conducted multiplier events in five countries, and our coordinator organized an international multiplier event, reaching different kind of organizations. These organizations now have a clearer view of the project's results and can effectively utilize them.

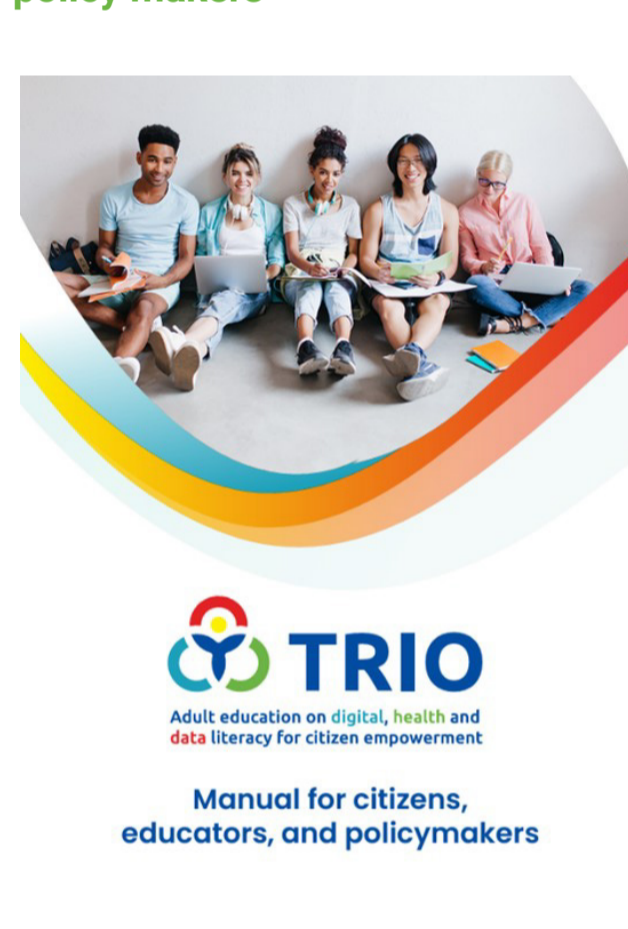

What have we done?

European and national reports about health, data and digital literacy

Manual for citizens, educators and policy makers

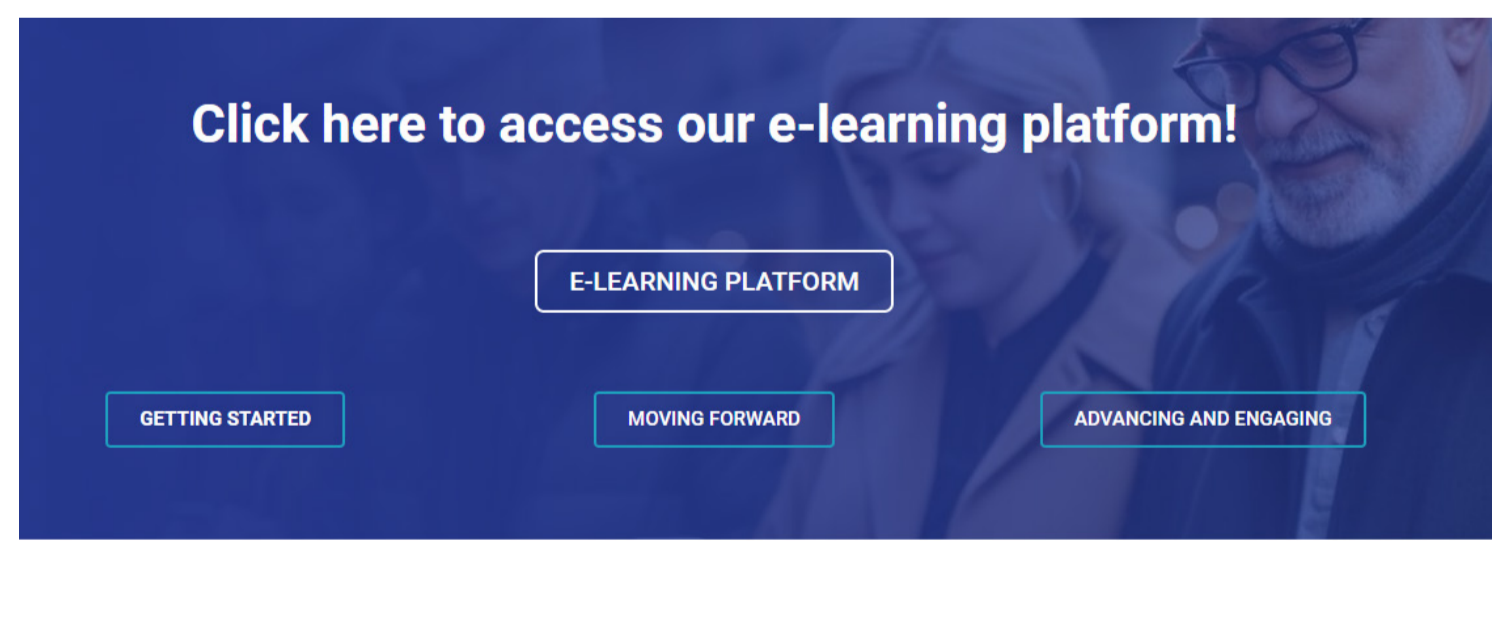

Recommendations for policymakers

Toolkit for professionals and workshop methodology

TRIO e-learning platform

TRIO and publications

What's next?

We did a SWOT analysis to elaborate strategies that will intensify the strengths and opportunities of the TRIO results and drafted an action plan to enhance the sustainability of the game. Strategies for the dissemination to adult educators, political decision-makers and lobby-groups at the local, regional and national level were synthesized in this briefing paper.
